The Federal Communications Commission set the sound-breaking precedent for use of federal power to invade private enterprise when it persuaded Congress to pass a law compelling manufacturers of television sets to include a UHF (Ultra High Frequency) receiver in each set.

This capricious adventure has cost set buyers, regardless of where they live, a considerable amount of money. Although millions of television sets are being sold and re-sold each year, there are very few UHF stations operating in the country.

Those that do operate are in big cities with big markets that can afford to pay the cost of this rather hazardous form of broadcasting. Small cities and towns have a very remote chance of ever receiving a UHF / signal, unless the federal government should make a complete takeover of broadcasting and finance the construction and operation of stations in all parts of

This could be done, but whether it could be justified is something else. Federal construction of a vast network of television stations, in our opinion, would be a national catastrophe of the first order.

The federal government derives its power from the people, who through the political parties of their choice, elect their congressmen, senators, President and Vice President. This group of people in turn for a period of time control all departments, agencies and commissions of the federal government. The temptation of these highly placed public officeholders to use governmentcontrolled television or any other communications medium to support their political cause would be almost overwhelming.

Freedom of speech and of the press were written into the Constitution for a particular purpose, this being to permit the public in general to have the freedom to criticize the actions of those they chose to put in public office. These freedoms have been repeatedly upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court. If those who wrote the Constitution and the Bill of Rights had known that television, radio and other means of communication were coming, certain provisions would have been written into the Bill of Rights to provide the same degree of protection against encroachment by government. Today, freedom of television and radio is just as important as freedom of the press.

Guard Changes Are Accepted

Romney has accepted a proposed allotment of unified National Guard and Army Reserve units which will put the state's military strength at 13,-904 men in 171 units.

Romney had 15 days to accept or protest the allocation set by the Department of Defense and National Guard Bureau The State Military Board unanimously recommended acceptance.

The state currently has 101 Guard units and 129 Army Reserves units with 9,197 and 7,468 men, respectively. The new allotment means a drop of 59 units and 2,761 troops slots.

The unification is part of a nationwide Defense Department policy announced in December. All paid drill units of the Army Reserve will be brought into the guard. Non-paid drill units and individuals not affiliated with units will be kept in the Army Reserve.

The state's major units will be an infantry division brigade with authorized strength of 2,479 and a 2,145-man portion of a training division.

Support Given C&NW Merger

CHICAGO (AP) - A witness testified at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing Tuesday that the merger of the Chicago and North Western and Chicago Great Western railways would be beneficial to other railroads, including their strongest competitors. Benjamin R. Harris, executive vice president of the Great Western, gave this opinion at a hearing into the proposed consolidation of the two midwestern roads.

"All railroads today are under intensive competitive pressure from other modes of transportation," Harris said. "It is this intermodal competition, not competition from each other, which in general poses a serious threat to the ability of railroads to continue to render an adequate transportation service.

"Railroads must cooperate with each other in a variety of ways for the protection of the industry."

Harris said where two railall military forces in the state merger they may retain for might otherwise switch to Home hair coloring is simpler with a new five-minute color procedure. The hair coloring is worked through the hair and shampooed out after five minutes. It lasts from four to six weeks. In six shades choose a shade nearest your own color if you merely want highlights or blend in gray. To lighten or brighten your hair and again blend in gray, select the next shade lighter than your own and to darken your hair, select the next shade darker.

Weatherstripping, once used exclusively to keep heat inside other functions these days. Not the least of them is keeping cool air inside an air-condition.

Af Banquet cool air inside an air-conditioned home. It also effectively seals against wind-borne dust openings around doors and windows.

We once heard an authority say that ordinary windows are so loosely fitted that the clear- day ance around the sashes is equal to a hole four inches square. Another time we heard the opinion that such leakage equals a hole three inches in diameter. So the mathematician probably can figure out the relationship between those two estimates. All we know is that if you hold a lighted candle near the edges of a window or door on a windy day, you'll realize how much air is coming through - unless the window or door is weatherstripped.

This may seem like unecessary advice, but in the case of windows especially, the sealing efficiency of weatherstripping often is lost because there is a slight air space under the sash. To be certain that a window is closed tightly, keep it locked at all times. Also, check the weatherstripping occasionally to be certain that it hasn't become dislodged or misaligned.

When air leaks exist despite the use of weatherstripping, the seepage may be coming from between the winds frames and masonry walls. Sometimes air comes through pulley holes, around loose glass or broken putty, and even through wood joints of the window if the paint is in poor condition. All of these conditions can be remedied by caulking, applying fresh putty, repainting or repairing the window.

Marble Recalls Seven Employes

Marble Arms Corp., Gladstone sporting goods manufacturer, announced today day that employment has reached its highest level in eight months and that the work week has been increased to 50 hours to meet an early backlog of orders.

According to company officials, employment has risen to 32, not including salaried personnel. This is the highest since July, 1964.

A total of seven former employes have been called back to work during the past several weeks, a spokesman said. The work week was increased to 50 hours on March 1 and is expected to remain at that level for at least 30 days.

The production increases were needed to fill gunsight orders for two major firearms manufacturers, the spokesman said.
